We Gon' Be Alright

Status:

Open

Meeting Day and Time:

TBD

Facilitated By:

LaVoya Woods-Dionne, LCSW

With the current climate of our nation, we recognize that Black students may need a space to gather, share their experiences, and gain support from one another. Our Black students are currently coping through a global health pandemic and a racism pandemic, all while dealing with the stressors of being a Black student at a Predominantly White Institution. This group is open to Black students seeking support and community during these times. If you are a Black student wanting to connect with other Black students around supporting each other's experiences, we invite you to participate in this group. This group is open to students out-of-state. The group is facilitated by Cherish Williams, Ph.D., a Black psychologist within CAPS. Please contact LaVoya Woods-Dionne, LCSW (lavyoya@live.unc.edu ^[1]) if you are interested in participating. The group will be held via zoom.
